FINDINGS, CONCLUSIONS, AND RECOMMENDATION

Based on the relevant filings and applicable law, the case should be dismissed without prejudice for failure to prosecute or comply with court orders.

I. BACKGROUND

On August 26, 2022, the pro se prisoner plaintiff filed “a complaint” alleging wrongdoing by personnel at the Internal Revenue Service in Austin, Texas. (See doc. 3.) By Notice of Deficiency and Order dated August 31, 2022, he was notified that if he had intended to file a civil lawsuit, his filing did not comply with the requirement in Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a) of a “short and plain statement of the claim showing that [he was] entitled to relief”; if he intended to file a civil rights lawsuit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, he had not filed his complaint on the proper form for that type of action. (See doc. 4.) He was also notified that he had not paid the filing fee or submitted an application to proceed in forma pauperis (IFP) for a civil action. (See id.) He was ordered to either file an amended complaint that complied with Rule 8(a) or a civil rights action on the proper § 1983 form, depending on the type of action he sought to pursue, within thirty days. (See id.) He was also ordered to either pay the filing fee or submit a fully completed and signed IFP application with the required certificate of inmate trust account within thirty days. (See id.) He was specifically advised that a failure to do so could result in the dismissal of the case for failure to prosecute or comply with court orders. (See id.) Attached to the order were complaint form and an IFP application. (See id.)

More than thirty days from the date of the notice of deficiency and order have passed, but the plaintiff has not filed an amended complaint and either paid the filing fee or submitted a fully completed IFP application, and he has not filed anything else in this case.

II. INVOLUNTARY DISMISSAL

Rule 41(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure permits a court to dismiss an action sua sponte for failure to prosecute or follow orders of the court. McCullough v. Lynaugh, 835 F.2d 1126, 1127 (5th Cir. 1988) (§ 1983 prisoner action). This authority flows from a court's inherent power to control its docket, prevent undue delays in the disposition of pending cases, and avoid congested court calendars. Link v. Wabash R.R. Co., 370 U.S. 626, 629-31 (1962). The plaintiff failed to comply with an order to either file an amended complaint that complied with Rule 8(a) or a civil rights complaint on the proper § 1983 form, and to either pay the filing fee or submit a fully completed IFP application with a certificate of inmate trust account, despite a warning that failure to do so could result in dismissal of the case. He has not filed anything else in the case since his initial filing on August 26, 2022. Because the plaintiff failed to follow a court order or otherwise show that he intends to proceed with this case, it should be dismissed.

III. RECOMMENDATION

The plaintiff's case should be dismissed without prejudice under Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b) for failure to prosecute or follow orders of the court, unless he files an amended complaint and either pays the filing fee or files a fully completed IFP application with a certificate of inmate trust account within the time for objecting to this recommendation, or by some other deadline set by the court.

SO RECOMMENDED on this 21st day of November, 2022.

A copy of these findings, conclusions, and recommendation shall be served on all parties in the manner provided by law. Any party who objects to any part of these findings, conclusions and recommendation must file specific written objections within 14 days after being served with a copy. See 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed.
